

Sales price $14.99

Salesprice with discount

Description

As a boy, Gordon loved breakfast time. Every morning his mother sent him to the bakery at the corner of their street to buy freshly baked breadcakes. When he returned, his mum would butter the cakes and give the children one each. It kept him going all morning, especially if his sisters didn't feel hungry and he got two!

Gordon says, 'I love mornings, and love starting each day listening to God speaking through His Word, and breaking the bread of life.' Along with David in Psalm 143:8 Gordon's prayer is,

'Cause me to hear Your loving-kindness in the morning...

Cause me to know the way in which I should walk.'

He says, 'We are inclined to talk to God or to discuss what He has said. Sometimes we have already decided what we will do. David appeals to God to "make" him hear. God wants to calm our hearts and spirits each day and cause us to hear His "loving-kindness in the morning" so that we can walk with Him throughout the day.' The aim of Breadcakes for Breakfast, Gordon's third book, is to help to stimulate this important aspect of the Christian life.

Gordon Kell has been involved in Christian ministry for over fifty years, including camps, young married couples' weekends, conferences in the UK and abroad, and radio broadcasts. He commands a wide respect for 'rightly handling the word of truth' (2 Tim 2:15), combining awareness of its depth with a succinct and accessible style.

Gordon and his wife June have one daughter and four grandchildren, and live in north-east Lincolnshire.

225 Pages - Softcover - Author: Gordon David Kell